

ABSTRACT

A method and system for co-operative networking wherein a first device advertises resources which it has available for sharing, a second device
5 requests at least part of the available resources of the first device and the first and second devices execute co-operatively a task using both the shared resources of the first device and the resources of the second device.

10 To be accompanied, when published, by Figure 2 of the drawings.